to this paltrie Knight.

Miſ. Ford. Truſt me, I thought on her; ſhee'll fit it.

M. Page. You are come to ſee my daughter Anne?

Qui. I forſooth: and I pray how do's good Miſtreſſe Anne?

Miſ. Page. Go in with vs and ſee, wee haue an houres talke with you.

Page. How now Maſter Ford?

Ford. You heard what this knaue told me, did you not?

Page. Yes, and you heard what the other told me?

Ford. Doe you thinke there is truth in them?

Page. Hang 'em ſlaues: I doe not thinke the Knight would offer it: But theſe that accuſe him in his intent towards our wiues, are a yoake of his diſcarded men, very rogues, now they be out of ſeruice.

Ford. Were they his men?

Page. Marry were they.

Ford. I like it neuer the better for that,
Do's he lye at the Garter?

Page. I marry do's he: if hee ſhould intend this voyage toward my wife, I would turne her looſe to him, and what hee gets more of her, then ſharpe words, let it lye on my head.

Ford. I doe not miſdoubt my wife, but I would be loath to turne them together, a man may bee too confident, I would haue nothing lye on my head, I cannot be thus ſatisfied.

Page. Looke where my ranting-Hoſt of the Garter comes: there is either liquor in his pate, or mony in his purſe, when hee lookes ſo merrily: How now mine Hoſt?

Hoſt. How now Bully-Rooke, thou'rt a Gentleman, Caueleiro Iuſtice, I ſay.

Shal. I follow, (mine Hoſt) I follow, Good-euen, and twenty (good Maſter Page.) Maſter Page, will you go with vs? we haue ſport in hand.

Hoſt. Tell him Caueleiro-Iuſtice: tell him Bully-Rooke.

Shal. Sir, there is a fray to be fought, betw
the Welch Prieſt, and Caius the French Doct

Ford. Good mine Hoſt o'th'Garter, a word

Hoſt. What ſaiſt thou, my Bully-Rooke?

Shal. Will you goe with vs to behold it? M hath had the meaſuring of their weapons, a appointed them contrary places: for (belee the Parſon is no Ieſter: harke, I will tell you ſhall be.

Hoſt. Haſt thou no ſuit againſt my Knig Caualeire?

Ford. None, I proteſt, but ile giue you a p ſacke, to giue me recourſe to him, and tell hi Broome, onely for a ieſt.

Hoſt. My hand, (Bully,) thou ſhalt haue greſſe, (ſaid I well?) and thy name ſhall be merry Knight, will you goe An-heires?

Shal. Haue with you mine Hoſt.

Page. I haue heard the French-man hath g Rapier.

Shal. Tut Sir, I could haue told you m times you ſtand on diſtance, your Paſſes, St
I know not what: 'tis the heart (Maſter Pag
'tis heere, I haue ſeene the time, with my would haue made you fowre tall fellow Rattes.

Hoſt. Heere boyes, heere, heere, ſhall we wag

Page. Haue with you, I had rather heare th fight.

Ford. Though Page be a ſecure foole, and ſt ly on his wiues frailty: yet, I cannot put-off eaſily, ſhe was in his company at Pages hou they made there, I know not. Well, I will loo to't, and I haue a diſguiſe, to ſound Falſtaffe, honeſt, I looſe not my labour, if ſhee be oth
bour well beſtowed.